

At last, I had reached near to the end of the path and it was time to approach the house. Concerningly, I scanned the address on the envelope in my hands. The house looked abandoned... but there was a light. I knew I had to knock on the front door but I didn't want the owner to see I had arrived. I mapped out a route through the tall trees like a hunter stalking its prey in the dark. Being

as silent as I possibly could, I jumped from tree to tree trying not to step on any crunching leaves on the woodland floor. I could see my breath in front of me hitting the cold air. The house was enticing me forwards, "How long has it been since you last visited?" Suddenly, a noise interrupted my path towards the building. I stopped.

At last, I had reached near to the end of the path and it was time to approach the house. Concerningly, I scanned the address on the envelope in my hands. The house looked abandoned... but there was a light. I knew I had to knock on the front door but I didn't want the owner to see I had arrived. I mapped out a route through the tall trees like a hunter stalking its prey in the dark. Being

as silent as I possibly could, I jumped from tree to tree trying not to step on any crunching leaves on the woodland floor. I could see my breath in front of me hitting the cold air. The house was enticing me forwards, "How long has it been since you last visited?" Suddenly, a noise interrupted my path towards the building. I stopped.

At last, I had reached near to the end of the path and it was time to approach the house. Concerningly, I scanned the address on the envelope in my hands. The house looked abandoned... but there was a light. I knew I had to knock on the front door but I didn't want the owner to see I had arrived. I mapped out a route through the tall trees like a hunter stalking its prey in the dark. Being as silent as I possibly could, I jumped from tree to tree trying not to step on any crunching leaves on the woodland floor. I could see my breath in front of me hitting the cold air. The house was enticing me forwards, "How long has it been since you last visited?" Suddenly, a noise interrupted my path towards the building. I stopped.